To whom it may concern,

Olive Mooney first visited our school during our World Book week celebrations in 2010. At that time she was writing her book called "The Chronicles of Cadaver College". The children were so interested and excited about the story. Olive then asked if she could return to the same class to continue to read to them as the novel developed over time. We were always happy to see her. Each year since then, Olive has kindly returned to read to classes during our book celebrations and to allow the children to experience an Author in Residence.

Our senior classes have also read her novel as part of their class programme for the year. The response has been very positive. We always look forward to a visit from Olive to our school, and World Book Week wouldn't be the same without her. Photographs and regular correspondence from Olive is a permanent feature of our class notice board.

We hope to continue to work with Olive on any future projects that she may undertake.

With warm regards,

The staff of St. Laurence's N.S.
